

Marcus Webb to roll out InterviewGOLD in Australia

30 September 2009 6:21am

Former LinkMe state manager Marcus Webb has been appointed the Australian GM of an online jobseeker interview training company.

Webb spent three years at LinkMe, and became its Victorian state manager late last year. Prior to that he managed the online team for the strategic communication branch of the Victorian Department of Justice.

He has overseen the customisation of InterviewGOLD for the local market and will manage its launch and ongoing operations in Australia and New Zealand.

Know someone who's been appointed or promoted to a new role in recruitment? Let Recruiter Daily share the news in our "moving on up" section by emailing the details to jo@recruiterdaily.com.au.

Please aim to answer as many as possible of the following questions in your submission, and feel free to include a photo for publication on the site:

- Who is the person who's moving on up? What is their new role (temp/perm, industries etc), and with which company? When do/did they start?
- If it's a promotion, what was their previous role with the company, and how long have they been employed there?
- If it's a new appointment, who was the previous employer, and how long was their tenure? Where else have they worked?
- How many years' experience does the person have in the recruitment industry, and what specialist areas? Have they worked in other industries previously?

Please don't forget to include a brief description of your company and its area of specialisation.
